What is there left?

The phrase, "What is there left?" comes to me whenever there is a discussion of today's youth. Reporting upon the state of our high school age youth, a recent article quoted this question by one high school age student as justifying the alleged wild conduct of some of his fellow students. The student explained that everything was now done that could be done and there was nothing left for which to strive.

Let us examine this comment a moment. What has been done by the world of adults? We have fought several wars, built a number of swimming pools, and increased the national debt. The adult world is bequeathing to you, the youth, a world of fear, hate, and hunger. The legacy you receive is composed of a high degree of materialism but a low degree of idealism.

But it has done one thing of which it can be proud-it has given and is giving to its youth the greatest educational opportunities the world has ever known. You will note the use of "Opportunities" because this is the most it can give. The rest is up to you. You have available to you the means and opportunity to learn to go to the moon, discover new foods, formulate new systems of mathematics and devise new schools of philosophy. "What is there left?" That is up to you.

Last season certainly was not successful as far as the score board was concerned; however, I feel that the boys will profit by their mistakes.

We lost several of our linemen and most of our backfield at graduation. We are counting on junior varsity talent which, we have noticed, includes several good prospects.

We will have a considerably younger team, composed mostly of sophomores and juniors. We foresee a good season in 1962-1963 and a fine team in 1963-64, providing that injuries are kept at a minimum.
