

The Walk of Western Stars began in 1981 to honor the legends of Western film, television and radio who have contributed to America's heritage since 1900. The Old West comes alive again each year when western stars are immortalized in bronze and terrazzo tile on the streets of Old Town Newhall during the City of Santa Clarita's Cowboy Festival.

AROUND TOWN

William S. Hart Park & Museum:

Tour this 1927 Spanish Colonial Revival estate of silent movie star William S. Hart, which includes an impressive collection of art, native American artifacts and a herd of American Bison gifted to the star by Walt Disney himself.

Mentryville:

This former 1880's oil boomtown was home to more than 100 families and was the longest continually operating oil well in the world before it closed in 1990. See historic buildings, including a one-room school house and the oil well itself – Pico No. 4.

Heritage Junction:

Step back into Santa Clarita's Wild West history and tour this collection of historic sites, including the 1887 Saugus Train Station, the 1865 Mitchell Adobe, the 1926 Ramona Chapel and more.

Saugus Café: The oldest operating restaurant in Los Angeles County. This classic café launched in 1886 and is open for breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Melody Ranch Motion Picture Studio:

Mosey down the dusty streets that set the backdrop for countless Western films, including "Stagecoach," "High Noon," "The Lone Ranger," and "Django Unchained." Schedule VIP backlot tour at MelodyRanchStudio.com.
